

Shaping of Latvia-Russia border municipalities united cultural information place and cooperation network by means of literary artistic creative potential

Forget a Hurry

Priority 3 Promotion of people to people cooperation

Measure 3.2 Cooperation in spheres of culture, sport, education, social and health

Short summary of the project

People are the main priority of every municipality. Happy people are those people who can fill the desire for creative expression in literature or in art. In all three municipalities, Vilani, Karsava and Shlisselburg, there exist professional literary and artistic groups though their activities take place in a very narrow circle. Implementation of this project and coordination of these groups in different organizations will break down borders between people on the local and international level. To achieve optimum results project partners will apply existing potential of the territory - cultural centres and historical cooperation ties.

Implementation of the project will involve more than 3000 people (literary people, artists, library users). They will get improved places of public use: open-air reading space - stage near the Vilani library, open-air stage in Karsava and renovated library in Shlisselburg. New, stronger international literary and artistic group will introduce the final products (a blog and a book) to wider audience and will attract new participants to their groups thus making a solid basis for sustainability of the project results.

Overall objective

To develop in Vilani, Karsava and Shlisselburg a united cultural information environment and collaboration network used by people with literary and artistic creative potential in order to achieve stronger cooperation between Latvian and Russian border municipalities.

Specific objective

- ✚ To provide Vilani, Karsava and Shlisselburg inhabitants with a possibility to expand literary and artistic skills and to make new opportunities for those who dare not show their talent to wider audience.
- ✚ To provide artistic and literary groups with a new improved places where their activities can be held and shown to the public
- ✚ To help literary and artist groups to create a ready product (blog and book) to advertise their actions and involve new participants.
